Rabbi Kaplan

Writes.

In 2016 I wrote an article about Abraham Joshua Heschel and his influence on the Conservative Movement, specifically with regard to spirituality. To be more accurate, Heschel had very little influence on our Movement with regard to spirituality. We don't have much. Even the great Conservative congregations whose services are podcast live to anyone who sees them on the Internet have little spirituality. They may have amazing cantors or choirs or great tunes and wonderful messages from the pulpit, but they still lack spirituality.

I noted that while in Rabbinical school, where my teachers had all known Heschel and had studied under him, I became extremely proficient in the worship service, aware of the minute details of the davening from the proper musical notes to the precise grammar of the Hebrew. It was only after I was in my first pulpit that I quickly realized that all the background and knowledge I had gained about the prayers wasn't going to help bring more people to services. Because nothing I learned at JTS actually taught me how to teach others to pray. I never learned how to show Jews how to have a relationship with God through prayer. To be honest, I never really learned how to achieve that myself. I knew the structure, the music, the words, the script, the movement- to this day I notice when folks bow at the "wrong" times during the Amida and don't bow at all the "right" times (twice only during the first paragraph at each "Baruch Atta" and not for the third blessing). Please don't worry about it. I have learned that it's not what's important. None of that matters nearly as much as what Heschel said 66 years ago. Here are a few of his greatest lines about worship in Conservative synagogues:

1. "Our motto is Monotony."
2. "The fire has gone out of our worship. It is cold, stiff, and dead."
3. "Has the synagogue become the graveyard where prayer is buried?"
4. "People expect the rabbi to conduct a service: an efficient, expert service. But efficiency and rapidity are no remedy against devotional sterility."
5. "Assembled in the synagogue everything is there-the body, the benches, the books, But one thing is absent: Soul. It is as if they all suffered from Spiritual absenteeism."

You get his drift. He's got much more audacity in the essay about prayer in the book of his writings called Moral Grandeur and Spiritual Audacity which can be found online at tinyurl.com/TIHeschel.

We've come a long way, spiritually, at Temple Israel. Most of us have appreciated the progress. Some of us have no desire to see any change. But unless we listen to Heschel we're doomed to become utterly irrelevant. Just as Israel is becoming increasingly attacked not by diabolical anti-Semitic haters, just by reasonable people with a questionable grasp of historical facts, despite Israel being a really good place, it doesn't matter anymore. A United States member of Congress, Rashida Tlaib, was in tepid (but not hot) water after her honest remarks about the Holocaust bringing her "a sense of calm" knowing that her people (Palestinians) had their land taken in order to provide European Jews a safe haven and a land of their own. Many are blustering about her remarks, and those of other young members of Congress who offer negative impressions of Israel. But Israel has lost its spiritual grandeur, especially among Jews. There is more compassion for Palestinians than for Israeli kindergarteners who run to the bomb shelters every time rockets fly in from Gaza. From Gaza whose return to the Arabs by Israel after being invaded in 1967 was going to be a feather in the Kippah for their magnanimity. But because the Jews have the audacity to embargo ships filled with terror tunnel building materials like rebar and cement, thousands of rockets are justified and Israel is easily demonized.

I can't figure out how to make the Israel situation better. We're offering a trip to Israel leaving Thursday, November 5, 2020 and returning Monday, November 12. The price is expected to be about $3800 including air, touring, great hotels, and breakfast and dinner daily. So start saving your shekels and let me know if you're interested. We'll be traveling with our Christian friends from Milford, Delaware and expect to have a wonderful interfaith trip. Our mere presence in Israel helps Israel.

But we can work on our own personal prayer problems. We're doing some meditation, and even trying out a bit of Yoga at some special Minyans. I'll meditate while you do the Yoga. And I'll be offering some classes during the summer to discuss the spirit of some of our prayers that we do, as Heschel would say, with alacrity and speed but with no audacity or wonder. May we learn how to be audacious in our worship so we can make Heschel proud and our experiences filled with wonder.

Another Phenomenal Law Day Shabbat!

Our 17th Annual Law Day Shabbat, made possible by the seemingly effortless coordination by co-chairs Attorneys Johanna Gelb and Barry Dyller, was enjoyed by a full house on Saturday, May 4th. Guest speaker, Congressman Matt Cartwright spoke powerfully, and from the heart about American values. And as always, many of our lawyers, and numerous municipal and county officials from the region, including several judges, participated in the service.

from Cantor

Many of you are aware that the prayer mode (nusach) and cantillation (trope) varies depending on the time of year or Biblical book being read. Shavuot, the Festival celebrating the giving of the Ten Commandments, provides us with several unique liturgical opportunities. The Book of Ruth is read (using a special trope reserved for the megillot read on the three Festivals) and the medieval liturgical poem known as Akdmut is chanted responsively with the congregation using a melody we employ for chanting the Hagaddah as well as the Festival Kiddush. These musical settings act as a spiritual guide, bringing our souls out of the mundane, the commonplace.

The most important aspect of Shavuot is that we celebrate the giving of the Ten Commandments, the very essence of our sacred teachings, and part of the foundation of Western Civilization. While it is good to study the Ten Commandments any time, it is a special mitzvah to hear them chanted on the first day of Shavuot. The famed 12th century scholar Ibn Ezra stated: "All interpretations of biblical passages which are not according to the logic of the trope should not be followed."

Our sages believed that the trope, properly chanted, clarified the meaning of the text. We cannot fully understand the text without the benefit of the melody.

The cantillation of the Commandments is especially beautiful. There are actually two sets of trope symbols, the so-called upper set for public reading and the other for private study. Although it is always considered meritorious to present both the words and music of a parsha as accurately as possible, it is especially important to strive for perfection when chanting the Ten Commandments. Those of you who have some familiarity with trope will notice that the "upper set" uses more of the elaborate tropes and also joins certain verses to each other. For instance, verses 8-11 which command the observance of Shabbat actually sound like one verse instead of four. If you were listening without a copy of the text in front of you (as the vast majority did in ancient times) you would hear those four verses together as one commandment. What a perfect example of how critical music is to our understanding of the text!

Shavuot falls on Sunday, June 9 this year. Since we now follow the custom of Eretz Yisrael and observe one day of the Festival, the Ten Commandments and the Yizkor service will take place on the same day. The fact that the holiday falls on a Sunday should make it that much easier for you to attend. Join us! You will have the opportunity to listen to the words, experience the special melodies and spiritually connect with our ancestors who passionately exclaimed at Mt. Sinai – "All that the Lord has spoken we will do!"

Bat Mitzvah of Paige Mendelssohn Kenewell

My name is Paige Mendelssohn Kenewell, and I will be celebrating my Bat Mitzvah on June 22nd. I am in 7th grade at Susquehanna Prep/Apple Tree. I live in Dallas with my parents and my younger siblings, Liam and Talia. Our house is a little bit of a zoo with 3 dogs and 3 cats, but I wouldn't have it any other way.

I have many hobbies. I really love everything in the arts, including singing in my school's glee club, drawing, and acting. One of my favorite things is PATA (Performing Arts Training Academy) camp in the summer. I am also a yellow with an orange stripe belt in martial arts at NEPA MMA. There, I am on the competition team, traveling to compete in sparring, forms, and weapons (bo staff). I really enjoy the team and friends I have met through karate. I want to thank everyone who's helped me prepare for my Bat Mitzvah, especially Cantor Abraham who somehow managed to teach me despite all of our digressions.

Like Books? Want Books? Know What to Do with Books?

Our move to the Friedman JCC will take place between June 12-15th. We are moving some of the books from our library over to the synagogue, but will have many that will either be boxed and stored or donated. Please call the office if you'd like to come in and choose some for yourself, or help us find a new home for them. We also need volunteers to help us pack and unpack. Please email info@templewb.org or call the office to let us know you are willing and able.

Women's Shabbat a Stellar Success!

Women's Shabbat on March 18 was a beautiful celebration of our women, especially those who are creatively inspired. It was chaired by Marsha Levenson and Ina Lubin. The service was led by Temple Israel Executive Director, Jane Messinger, and Attorney Johanna Gelb, our Gabbai. Featured guest speaker, our very own Debbie Grossman, shared the story of her life's personal, creative journey. From her early, illustrious, international career as fashion designer to her decades-long tenure in executive leadership roles for the Fine Arts Fiesta and the F.M. Kirby Center for the Performing Arts, there is no doubt she has made a huge impact on the quality of the arts culture here in NEPA. Additionally, Rosemary Chromey (in absentia), Iris Libenson, and Nancy Messinger reflected on the personal significance art has had in their lives. A showcase of art and creative works by the women of our congregation was on display in the vestry, as well as a representation of several significant pieces of art and Judaica owned by women of our congregation. The Women's League Past Presidents plaque was revealed, and a gift was presented to Ina Lubin in appreciation for her many years of dedicated service.

A Note of Thanks from Ina Lubin...

Dear Temple Israel Women,

I was so very surprised to see a gift on behalf of the women of the congregation at Women's Shabbat. The mezuzah is beautiful and the perfect gift for Shelly and I as we put down roots in a new community. Temple Israel will always be our home regardless of our future affiliations. It nurtured our Jewish souls from our early years and throughout many stages in our lives. The mezuzah will remind us of our connection to the NEPA Jewish community and at the same time make us feel at home as we begin our next steps.

I am so proud to have been involved with our congregational women as a Sisterhood member and as one of our women Past Presidents. I encourage each of you to be sure to contribute in your own way to ensure our synagogue is a place to nurture our shared Judaism.

With much gratitude,

-Ina

*Please join us on Saturday, June 8th, after services for a farewell kiddush for Ina and Sheldon Lubin
Please RSVP by June 3rd to info@templewb.org 570-690-1452*

From the President...

May is always a busy month at Temple Israel and this year is no different. On May 4th we celebrated Law Day, chaired by Attorneys Johanna Gelb and Barry Dyer, and as usual this was a huge success. Congressman Matt Cartwright's speech was relevant, timely, and very well received by our congregation, and the lawyers and judges who participated enjoyed the flow of our services. On May 10th our Friday Night Shabbat Dinner in our Vestry was attended by 38 people who enjoyed a good meal and great comradery. Next, on May 15th, was a private tour for Temple members at the Sordoni Art Gallery. Those in attendance were treated to a display of Japanese Woodcuts from the Syracuse University Art Collection and a rotating showcase of local Bonsai trees by the members of the NEPA Bonsai Society. The Art Gallery Tour is always fascinating and this event was another great cultural experience. On May 18th was our Women's Shabbat, chaired by Marsha Levenson and Ina Lubin, with featured speaker Debbie Grossman. This Shabbat promoted "Jewish Women Embracing the Arts", and a showcase of work by the women in our congregation was displayed. Many thanks to all the women who participated. Then on May 19th we gathered for a presentation by Mark Adelson at our Groh Minyan Breakfast. His topic was "The Holocaust and Righteous Gentiles." Righteous Gentiles were non-Jewish people who helped save Jewish lives during World War II. Mark did extensive research on this topic and his lecture was very interesting and educational. Also, on that day, our Temple Book Club enjoyed dinner together followed by a spirited discussion of the book "And After the Fire".

As you can see, our Temple continues to offer a variety of special Shabbats and programs to satisfy the cultural, educational and religious needs of our members. I look forward to seeing you at our Annual Dinner on June 5th as we honor Isobel and Marvin Slomowitz as our 2019 "Amudei Tzibor" Pillars of the Community. They are very deserving of this award and your attendance will enhance this dinner. Your participation will be greatly appreciated.
